DEVELOPMENT EVALUATION TRAINING PROGRAMME IN AFRICA (DETPA)

13–24 August 2018

DETPA's vision of an African approach to evaluation acknowledges that context, culture, history and beliefs are critical to the way we shape evaluation in response to the diversity and complexity of development in Africa.

Participants can choose between the Foundation and the Advanced Track. The two courses are presented in parallel over a period of two weeks.

FOUNDATION TRACK

Suitable for policy makers, programme managers, development workers, new entrants to M&E and those who need a refresher course on M&E fundamentals. The course reveals new thinking on evaluation and includes discussion on a "Made in Africa" approach to evaluation and its importance in the context of the Sustainable Development Goals.

ADVANCED TRACK

This track will enhance the knowledge and expertise of experienced evaluators and M&E practitioners. The course explores developmental evaluation, deepening evaluation and adaptive management. It examines evaluation methods in complex contexts and the importance of cultural responsiveness in evaluation in Africa.

"DETPA equipped AULA participants with tools for enhancing the ongoing institutionalisation of RBM principles and tools in programme planning, monitoring and evaluation and reporting within the AU Organs." – Scelo Zibagwe, African Union Commission

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Courses are designed to build the capacity of M&E practitioners, evaluators and new entrants who require high-quality introductory training. The course is also suitable for decision makers and development workers who would like to refresh their knowledge and improve their use of evidence to inform decision-making.
